Research Results Jasmine Face Cream
Prepared by the Bronigan Group

Executive Summary

Objective
To guin insight into the reasons why sales of Jasmine Face Cream have declined in the last three years

Methodology
Bronigan conducted focus groups in four areas of the country: The 60 participants represented a wide range of consumers.

Results
- Product quality: Fully 100 percent of focus group participants liked the fresh scent and creamy texture of Jasmine Face Cream as well as the fact that it contains all-natural ingredients.
- Price point: Some participants said the price was too high. Some longtime users mentioned that the price has doubled in the last ten years. However, they felt the current price was still reasonable given the quality of the product.
- Packaging: Many participants were critical of the product packaging. They were put off by what they called the "cheap looking," "dated," and "environmentally unfriendly" container and box.

Product Review: Jasmine Face Cream

This is not a review of a new product. In fact, the ingredients in Jasmine Face Cream have not changed since my mother first used it as a young woman. The cream still moisturizes better than any other product I've tried and is bursting with the scents of a fresh spring day. What's new is the look and feel of the product's packaging. Finally, the folks at Jasmine realized that the old-fashioned plastic container and heavy cardboard box had to go. The new glass jar is stylish and recyclable. Unfortunately, it has a plastic lid and contains 25 grams less cream than the original container. However, I applaud Jasmine's efforts to move in a greener direction in its business strategy.
